nditions which prevail here. At present the lepers are confined in one of the pavilions which was erected during the syphus epidemic in 1893. It is 50 feet long by 20 feet wide. The lepers are limited to a space of fifty square yards. There are five lepers in the colony, and they seem to be pretty cheerful, despite the fact that they are suf fering from the loathsome disease. Fleming took his place in the colony on Monday, and yesterday seemed as comfortable as though he there all his life. Long Dong, a Chinaman, is the leper who has been in isolation the longest of any, and the others have come to regard him as the leading member of the colony. All of the lepers arose and stood beside their cots when the experts and the reorters entered. When the party reaches ong Dong's cot that happy-looking leper d forward and shook hands with Dr.

Long Dong's cot that happy-looking leper stepped forward and shook hands with Dr. Fowler, whom he has come to regard as a very good friend. Long smiled as cheerfully as if he were the owner of a prosperous laundry in town. He speaks fairly good English, and grinned broadly when asked about his general welfare by Dr. Fowler.

He is an expert with the Chinese pencil, and wrote his signature and other Chinese characters for the party. Long looked healthy enough, and there were few signs of the disease to be seen on him. He remained in a happy mood for some moments, and then auddenly his eyes assumed a sorrowful expression, and, with a good deal of emotion, he turned to Dr. Fowler and said.

"Doctor, me wantee go back to Chinee. My mamme mebbo shee cly bout me."

"All right, Long, we'll see what can be done about the matter," said the Doctor, assuringly, and Long's mood changed, and he became cheerful as before. He is 30 years old, and has been sequestered on the island since Sept. 25, 1894. Dr. Mocey of the Chinese society wants to send Long Bong and the other Chinese member of the leper colony, Sam Loo, back to China. Sam has been on the island since June 30, 1895. The Health Board is willing to allow this two Chinamen to be returned, providing the Chinese society can seque a means of transporting them which will be satisfactory. Dr. Mooey is endeavoring to arrange this now.

cure a means of transporting them which will be satisfactory. Dr. Mooey is endeavoring to arrange this new.

Sam Loo is also a cheerful Chinaman, atthough he seems to be in a worse condition than his countryman. He readily exhibited the signs of the disease to the experts, and seemed to be as much interested as anybody when Dr. Piffard took some blood drops from his ear for microscopic examination.

John Brown, 17 years, who was sent to the island on April 16, 1895, and Henry Willlams, 20 years old, who got there on Oct. 31, 1895, are two negroes, natives of St. Kitts in the West Indies, who contracted the disease there. Brown amuses himself making pictures of ships with colored chalk, while Williams spends most of his time reading.

Frederick Fleming, the homeless German and latest addition to the colony, was said by the experts to be suffering from a more propunced form of leprosy than the others. Fleming said yesterday that he had been in New York city for only three months, but he had been three years in the United States. He has worked as a baker whenever he got the apportunity. He spent most of the time tramping through North Carolina, and never knew the nature of the disease he was suffering from. He has had it so long that he could not remember when the signs of the disease first began to appear. He worked for seventeen years at his trade in Brazil, and says he got the disease there. The pavilion in which the cots on which they sleep and a chair for each one.

Pr. Fox said:

"In my opinion there is not the slightest chance for the disease of leprosy becoming endemic; in this city, or anywhere around these parts, and the chances of even a sporadio case of contagion from a leper, even in a case like Fleming's, who has been sleeping in lodging houses and the like, are very improbable. In all my experience I never heard of a single case of contagion from this disease in this cilmate. All the cases which are discovered have been contracted in South American or in Asiatic countries. There are half a dozen or more of such cases in New York city at the present day, and the victims of the disease go about their daily-tocations and live with their families without fear of infecting anybody, as they have been told that there was no danger of their foing so. One of these is a lawyer conspicuous in local life, who contracted the disease in a mild form while teaching school is South America.

"The greatest danger to my mind from leprosy is the horror with which the majority of the public views it. An educated man who contracts it usually gets the impression that he will suffer a horriole death from it, and that there is possibly no hope of recovering from it. I know of patients who have had it in a mild form and their condition has improved from time to time. The disease, two its not so repulsive as is ordinarily supposed, as you might have noticed while observing the lepers here. The danger of contagion from tuberculosis, diphtheria, or scarlet fever, is infinitely greater, than that of leprosy, and yet we have hundreds of these cases day after day."

Dr. Morrow also said that there was no danger of a sporadic case like Fleming's, or any of the other cases found in New York city, danding any contagion. He added:

COCHEU REPUBLATES THE DOG. Chambers Says It Bit Him and Sues Cochen

John Chambers has begun a suit against Capt, Fred Cocheu for $3,000 damages for injuries from the bite of a dog, in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. The plaintiff was riding his bicycle Brocklyn. The plaintiff was riding his bicycle through Seventh avenue on June 10, when a dog described as "white and yellow and of a ferocious and mischlevous disposition, accustomed to attack and bite mankind," attacked him, pulling kim off the wheel and biting him severely. Oapt. Cocheu denies all knowledge of such a dog, and says that his dogs were always very friendly to wheelmen and bloomer girls.

MOVING THE FAT WOMAN. Six Men Get Her Into an Ambalance, Seven

Policeman James H. Magan of the East Thirty-fifth street squad had to superintend and help on Monday night the removal of a fat woman who had been a Bowers museum freak

In years back.
"Excuse me!" he said yesterday. "I don't want to have to handle any more fat women." The woman in question was Eliza Fleming, known on the boards as "Big Lize," and she was living at 336 East Thirty-sixth street. When she was in her giory, and Bowery crowds paid ten cents apiece to look upon her ample proportions, she weighed 485 pounds. Her time had gone by, however, and she had fallen away until she was but a shadow of her former self, and weighed only 360. She was in hard and weighed only 360. She was in hard luck, too, for she was stricken with rheumatism in her hips, so that she was helpless, and her money was all gone.

So it came about that Policeman Magan was called in at 10 o'clock Monday night and asked to send her to the hospital. He sent for a Bellevie ambulance, and when it arrived summoned his side partner on the next post to help carry "Big Lize" to the wagon. She lay on the floor at the time. Other help was sent for, and all together they tried to life her upon the attecher. Two mea lifted at her shoulders and one at her feet, while the two policemen tried to grasp hands under her hips and raise her main weight. They were strong men and could have carried the weight, but they couldn't get their hands together.

the weight, but they couldn't get their hands together.

"Big Lize" was full of fun, even if she was ill.

"It's no go, boys," she said. "I'll roll." So she rolled over until she was on the stretcher. Then the two policemen and the two biggest of the other men each granged a landle of the groaning stretcher and carried her to the ambulance. They got their burden safely upon the slide which runs into the ambulance, but she was too much for them to push into the vehicle, it took six men to do that, and at Bellevue it took seven men to take her out safely and get her to the ward.

IS VOTING BY MACHINE VALIDS

The Attorney-General Says It Is if the Machine Have Certain Improvements. ALBANY, Sept. 22.-A question has arisen in Yonkers in regard to the legality of voting for Presidential electors upon the Myers ballot machine. It is said that, if the names of all the lectors of this State are put upon a single button and voted, all together, in such a way that the voter cannot discriminate and vote for some of the electors nominated by one party and then the constitutional provision giving the James M. Hunt, City Attorney of Yonkers, has requested Attorney-General Hancock's opinion on the question. Mr. Hunt writes the Attorney-General that the manufacturers of the Myers ballot machine are prepared to equip their machines with a device which will enable a voter to vote any kind of an electoral ticket he may desire. He can vote for one or more unnominated electors or for one or more of the electors of the opposing party, together with the rest of his own party electors.

In his opinion the Attorney-General says: "The provisions of the Constitution, to the effect that all electors shall be entitled to vote for all officers that now are or hereafter may be elective by the people, unquestionably secures to the voters of this State the right to cast their ballots for any qualified citizen, regardless of his having been nominated by either of the regular or independent political organizations. The general election law of the State makes specific provision for a blank column for the purpose of enabling an elector to write in that column the name of any person whose name is not printed upon the ballot for whom he desires to vote. The object of this provision is to give each voter full and unrestricted opportunity to jote for any citizen qualified to hold office. Any machine used should afford a similar right to the device referred to by the manufacturers be secured."

Corn Injured in Several States-Favorable Condition of Cotton. WASHINGTON, Sept. 22,-The weekly grop report of the Weather Bureau states: As most crops had been secured, the heavy frosts over the Northern States during the lat er part of the week caused but little damage following protracted cool and moist weather proved unfavorable to late corn, which also sustained some injury in Ohio, Kentucky, and unfavorably affected by excessive moisture anotana, waits ripened corn in lows has been unfavorably affected by excessive moisture. In Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Pennsylvania, the Virginias, and Maryland most of the crop has been cut.

The heavy rains over southern, central, and western Texas during the latter part of the week lowered the grade of cotton, but the benefit to the top crop will more than counterbalance the injury sustained. In Mississippi cotton is turning out better than was expected, and fn some sections is making new growth, which, however, is too late to be matured this season. Over the central and eastern portions of the cotton belt the week has been dry, and the work of picking has made rapid progress under favorable conditions.

Except in the Southern States, where drought continues, the general condition of the soil for ploughing and seeding of winter grain is excellent, and this work, which in some States had been delayed, has been pushed rapidly, and is now well advanced. In Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois early sown grain is coming up and is looking well.

Judge Trung Appoints a Receiver in the Partnership Quarrel.

Judge Truax of the Supreme Court has apointed Gilbert M. Speir receiver of the assets of the late firm of Kennett, Hopkins & Co., tock and grain brokers of New York and Chicago, in a suit brought a month ago by Francis Kennett against his partners, George B. Hopkins and Harry L. Terry. Judge Trunz says: "There seem to be very material disputes between the parties to the action in reference to the assets of the former coparthership and as to the manner in which the affairs of the copartnership shall be settled up. For instance, plaintiff claims that a large amount of stocks belongs to the Chicago house, in which he says the New York concern had no interest, while the defendants claim that the Chicago and New York houses formed one concern and the New York houses has a lien on the said stock. In the case before us the partnership has been dissolved, and the defendants answer shows that there is property concerning the division of which the partners have not agreed, and other property, the lease and good will, in regard to which there is a difference, the defendants claiming the whole interest to the exclusion of the plaintiff."

The firm was dissolved on April 30 by mutual consent. Mr. Kennett of Chicago was the capitalist. Kennett maintained that he was entitled to $186,200 worth of stocks, while Hopkins declared that Kennett or the firm was indebted to him to the amount of $271,000. partnership shall be settled up. ORPHANS TO GROW UP KANSANS. Two Companies Shipped to Western Homes by the Children's Ald Boctety.

Two companies of homeless boys and girls tarted out yesterday for homes in Kansas provided for them by the Children's Aid Society. The children were all orphans who had at one time or another applied for lodgings at the lodging houses of the society and had been induced to give up their roving lives and fit them-selves for citizenship. Some of the boys have learned farming at the Kensico farm of the society. Others are green. They will all work on farms in Kansas. Their new homes are in the townships of Chetopa and Erie. In the party were two very pretty orphan girls. They have been adopted by a woman of wealth who has no children of her own.

TUESDAY, Sept. 22. The change in the financial situation, fore shadowed in this column last Sunday, has already begun to take place in both the time money and commercial paper markets. Bank officers and other lenders of money, as well as borrowers and leading money brokers and dealers in commercial paper, agree that a decided change in the tone of the loan market has taken place during the last forty-eight hours. Trust companies, which are the principle lenders of time money, endeavored yesterday to place their funds at nine months to a year on good mixed Stock Exchange collateral at 6 B cent. To-day six months' money was offered at the legal rate on dividend paying securities. These rates are comparatively high, but the fact that time money is being offered at all is in marked contrast with the condition of affairs that exsted up to a few days ago. Few time loans are being made, partly because of the evident downward tendency of the money market and also because brokers have as yet very little use for long time accommodations. They are not carrying many stocks, and the majority of them are still timid and hence indisposed to encourage purchases by their customers.

An equally gratifying change has taken piace in the market for commercial paper. The city banks that usually invest in that class of security began to buy from others than their own customers yesterday and further purchases were made to-day, both by them and out-oftown buyers. In consequence the supply of really desirable paper has been materially reduced, and the rate for first-class bills receivable has dropped a point, to 7 $\tilde{\pi}$ cent. Simultaneously with these developments the foreign exchange market was weak again today, under a liberal supply of commercial bills. The only noteworthy demand for exchange is from bankers who are engaged in importing specie. The Bank of England sold to-day $1,225,000 in gold bars and American eagles for shipment to this country, making the total of the movement to date $38,697,500. Gold to the amount of $1,000,000 was deposited in the Sub-Treasury to-day in exchange for legal-tender notes, and bankers who deposited $1,600,000 in coin last week for examination surrendered their receipts for the same, also in exchange for legal tenders. The prospects of an advance in the Bank of England's minimum rate of discount this week is being discussed both here and abroad, but it is generally con-ceded that should an advance be ordered the effect will be to attract money to London from the Continent rather than to interfere with the natural and legitimate movement of specie to
